

ABOLITIONISTA! Patch Requirements

Part 1:

Read ABOLITIONISTA! #GoodGirlGone Comics THEN Attend one of the Saving Jane #GoodGirlGone workshops either in person or virtually found on the Girl Scout Event Calendar OR Attend the Good Girl Gone Peer to Peer teaching workshop to learn how to teach others about Abolitionista!

• Please contact bailey.howard@savingjane.org to book a workshop or visit <https://www.savingjane.org/workshop> to learn more.

Part 2:

Choose 4 of these 6 education activities to do with your troop.

- Talk with your Local Police force or Fire Station to learn about prevention programs and community outreach in your area.
- Discuss safe internet practice across social media platforms and chat rooms and create a post promoting safe boundaries using the #savingjane and #goodgirlgone and tag Saving Jane on Instagram: @savingjaneorg and Twitter: @SavingJaneOrg
- Take a self-defense class. (Any self-defense class you may have already taken can be applied as well)
- Research a sub-type of modern-day slavery and give a 4 to 6-minute oral report to the girls in your troop. Be sure to include statistics on race, age, gender or nationality, as well as organizations throughout the world that utilize these practices AND the organizations that help rescue victims and rehabilitate survivors of modern-day slavery.
- Together with your troop and troop leader review the Abolitionista Bill of Rights (found on the back inside cover of the #GoodGirlGone Comicbook or page 44 in the PDF version), THEN discuss what boundaries you might have that keep you feeling safe.
- Hold a round table with your troop AND (if possible) other girl scouts in your area addressing the following questions:
 - What is a predator and how do the characters in the comic identify them?
 - What is a recruitment conversation? What is grooming behavior? How can you identify the signs that someone exhibiting recruitment or grooming behavior?
 - What are two ways that Moon and Zoe deal with the predators that come up against?

- Who should you go to for help if you are worried about yourself or a friend?
- How can we be more aware of suspect behavior? What do we do when we are in a scary situation like Zoe's?

Part 3:

Choose 3 of the 5 advocacy activities to promote awareness.

- Create and share your own Abolitionista comic book. Make sure to include strong characters just like Zoe and Moon.
- Contact criminal and social justice programs in your area and how they can help you educate others on human trafficking prevention OR local youth resources, like teen group homes, safe place centers and youth outreach programs. Think about what you learn from these programs that could help Zoe and Moon.
- Using everything you have learned from the workshop and your activities from Part 1, teach your own workshop to another troop so they can learn how they can be Abolitionistas just like Moon in ABOLITIONISTA! #GoodGirlGone.
- Be a supportive friend like Moon and use your social media presence to show your followers how they can work to prevent human trafficking and child abductions. Your voice is powerful when you use it to help others, you can be an advocate too.
 - Some examples could be to share information learned in the workshop, promote local and national programs such as the National Human Trafficking Hotline, or follow celebrity advocates like Rebecca Bender (who you learned about in the workshop)
- Explore the social justice realms of Instagram, Facebook, Reddit, Twitter, and TikTok to expand your knowledge about the issues you face as young women in a digital world. Share a post that supports a cause that protects women from trafficking or shelters them after they have escaped bad situations.
 - Consider sharing your final projects with Saving Jane via social media or email.
